University Catalog Course Description
Explores youth culture and socio-historical constructions of adolescence; literacy in the lives of culturally and linguistically diverse learners; multimodal literacy; international literacy contexts; adolescent literacy policy and leadership; content area and disciplinary literacy; literacy needs of special learners; and adult literacy. Individual projects will connect adolescent literacy to students' areas of interest.

Course Overview
This course will be taught from an inquiry-oriented perspective, in that students will have the opportunity to develop and explore their own questions in a way that makes sense given their work to this point in the Ph.D. program. As part of this process, each individual will propose and conduct a project based on her or his own interests and learning needs.

Course Delivery Method
This class is a seminar with participation important and expected.
Learner Outcomes or Objectives
A. Students will read and analyze research studies and research reviews related to adolescent and young adult literacy.
B. Students will provide leadership for colleagues in class discussions.
C. Students will develop questions regarding adolescent and adult literacy and will create a scholarly paper to address those questions.
D. Students will develop an historical understanding of the field.
E. Students will develop an increased understanding of ways to participate in the academic community.

Professional Standards
N/A. International Literacy Association “Standards for Literacy Professionals” 2010 are used as guidelines.

Course Performance Evaluation- further guidance will be provided for writing assignments

Students are expected to submit all assignments on the due date through Blackboard. Any extensions for very unusual circumstances must be discussed with the instructor in advance.

- Assignments and Examinations
• Complete all course readings before the related class (see schedule). Please bring a copy of the reading to class as we will refer to it during discussion. If you like, your copy can be electronic if you bring a laptop to class.

• Bring to each class specific comments or question related to the reading. Make sure to note the page number. I do not suggest Kindle texts without page numbers.

• Critique 2 research articles – one for practice and one for a grade. 10%.

• Lead a discussion in class on the article you critiqued or one of the assigned readings. Distribute the reading the prior week on Blackboard if necessary. Write a lesson plan and a reflection. 10%.

• Write a literature review related to an adolescent literacy topic that demonstrates your understanding of research on a focused topic (60%). Present your topic to the class. (10%)

• Other Requirements
  [e.g., attendance, participation]
  Attend all classes and participate actively. If an emergency prevents attendance, please discuss the situation with the instructor in a timely manner (10%).

• Course Performance Evaluation Weighting
  Weighting is indicated next to each assignment. As a doctoral course, it is assumed that all students are extremely capable. Points will be lost for work of poor quality and lateness. Work turned in on time is eligible to be revised and resubmitted for a grade change. Evidence of significant effort and openness to continuous improvement is expected.

• Grading Policies
  Your written work must meet exceptionally high standards as you are working towards a dissertation and academic writing is not easy for anyone. However, you will have multiple opportunities for revision to obtain an A grade. Revision of our writing based on critique is an important academic skill in itself and will be very useful in your future as a scholar.

Professional Dispositions

Students are expected to exhibit professional behaviors and dispositions at all times.
Core Values Commitment
The College of Education and Human Development is committed to collaboration, ethical leadership, innovation, research-based practice, and social justice. Students are expected to adhere to these principles: http://cehd.gmu.edu/values/

Appendix A: EDRD 831
Critique and Discussion of a Research Study

A critique consists of a discussion of a research study and its results followed by your comments (called “critical comments”) about the strengths and weaknesses of the study.

A critique should include the following sections:
- Reference—put at the top of page 1
- Purpose
- Method
- Results
- Conclusions
- Critical comments

A critique should be brief (no more than 2 typed, single-spaced pages)

The reference for the article being critiqued should be in APA style (6th edition).

Method refers to how the study was conducted. In this section you should briefly describe what was done in the study. The following questions cover some of the information that is important.

- (for quantitative studies) What variables were studied? How was each variable measured?
• (for qualitative studies) What questions were studied? What methods of data collection were used?
• What was the size of the sample or who were the participants? How were the participants or sample selected? What are the demographics/characteristics of the sample/participants?
• How long did the investigation last?
• How were the data analyzed?

In the Results section, briefly describe what was found in the study and the conclusions the investigator drew from the findings.

The last section, critical comments, is very important. In this section, you have the opportunity to comment on the value of the research as conceptualized, conducted, and reported and on the practical value of the research for teachers, students, and schools. Though both strengths and weaknesses are included in this section, it is not appropriate to discuss only the strengths of a study. Every study has some weaknesses. Look for them as you read the study and describe them in your critique.

Think about the following issues: 1) new conceptual contributions of the study; 2) new methodological contributions of the study; 3) validity of the study; 4) research design, 5) the adequacy of the written report and suggestions for improvement, 6) suggestions for future research directions and effort.
