Course Description

Prerequisite: Admission to the Counseling & Development Program, and successful completion of ED CD 602: Foundations of Counseling and ED CD 626: Principles and Practices of School Counseling.

EDCD 611 is designed for counseling students in the school counseling track. It is designed to be taken midway through the curriculum so students should be familiar with basic counseling skills and applications, have an understanding of school counseling programs, and understand the developmental needs of children at either the elementary or secondary level.

EDCD 611 introduces principles, practices, and application of ethical and legal issues in school counseling, with emphasis on the Counseling & Development program's basic mission to help future counselors develop advocacy, leadership, social justice, and multicultural competencies.

Learning in this course will be achieved through the RED principles of adult learning.

Responsibility: Students will be respected as adults who are responsible for their own learning. Students are assumed to be responsible adults who can manage their schedules and workloads are expected to treat others respectfully.

Experience: This course acknowledges that all students bring a wealth of life experiences as well as experience and knowledge from previous courses on the Counseling and Development program. This experience will guide their learning and facilitate the learning of others.

Desire: Students are assumed to be motivated by an internal desire to learn and therefore will accomplish the learning without the need for external motivations.

Student Outcomes

At successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

- Demonstrate knowledge of the theory and practice of ethical principles and standards.
- Describe differences between ethical principles and legal standards.
- Demonstrate an awareness of the potential ethical dilemmas school counselors face.

Assignments

The following assignments are required.

Ethics Quiz (10 points)

This quiz will be completed during the first class period.

Case studies (10 points each)

Students will be presented with four cases studies and are asked to apply the Solutions to Ethical Problems in Schools process (Stone, 2001, pp.20-24) to address the ethical dilemma presented. Case studies will be addressed in a paper of no more than two typed, double-spaced pages.

Child Abuse Online Training (10 points)

Students will take the on-line child abuse training course required for certification in Virginia. The course can be accessed at www.vcu.edu/vissta/training/va_teachers Students will submit a copy of the Certificate of Completion to demonstrate completion of the online training.

Ethical Dilemma and Social Justice Paper (15 points)

In a paper of no more than three typed, double-spaced pages (excluding title and reference pages), present an example of an ethical dilemma with social justice implications you have experienced or witnessed with a co-worker, peer or supervisor in a school setting. The paper should be written objectively, taking care not to name specific people or agencies/schools.

The title of the paper is: The Role of the Professional School Counselor: Social Justice and Ethics.

The running head is: SC-Social Justice and Ethics. The paper should include the following:

- Abstract. Approximately 80 to 120 words, the abstract should include a short definition of the term, “social justice.” After the Abstract, an opening paragraph briefly introduces the content of the paper and includes a more detailed definition of the term social justice presented in the abstract. The opening paragraph is written in an objective, third person voice.

- Case Scenario (subhead). This section succinctly describes the situation in no more than one page. The case scenario is written in an objective, third person voice.
- Ethical Dilemma and Social Justice Implications (subhead). This section succinctly describes the ethical dilemma and states the social justice implications. It also analyzes any action taken, exploring whether the person made an ethically sound decision, with supporting evidence or discussion of an ethically sound approach that should have been taken. The analysis should be based on research, with citations, and is written in an objective, third person voice.
- Implications for Professional School Counselors (subhead). This section presents a thoughtful and reflective summary of the role of the professional school counselor related to the case study, highlighting the social justice issues and ethical principle(s) of the case and suggestions for improvement. This section is written in a subjective, first person voice (Use personal pronouns such as “I,” “me,” and “my.”)

The paper must be based on the professional literature with at least one article from a juried professional counseling journal such as the Professional School Counselor journal published by ASCA or the Journal of Counseling and Development published by ACA. Publication date must not exceed five years. Research citations should be used throughout the paper. Although the summary section is reflective in nature, the rest of the paper must be written in an objective voice.

Final Paper (25 points)

In a paper of no more than five typed, double-spaced pages (excluding title and reference pages), students will address this question:

What is the difference between the ASCA Ethical Standards for School Counselors and the codes of ethics developed by ACA and NBCC. How do these differences reflect the difference between school counseling and other counseling practices?

The case studies, social justice paper and final paper must follow the APA 6th edition format. The social justice paper and final paper should include a cover page and reference page. They also should include an abstract that summarizes the main point(s) of the paper. The abstract should be approximately 80 to 120 words. Students should use appropriate research citations throughout their work.

George Mason University Policies and Requirements

ADA

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) prohibits discrimination against individuals with disabilities in the services, programs, or activities of all state and local governments. Students with disabilities who seek accommodations in a course must be registered with the GMU Disability Resource Center (DRC) and inform the instructor, in writing, at the beginning of the semester. See www.gmu.edu/student/drc or call 703-993-2474 to access the DRC.

GMU's Honor Code

“To promote a stronger sense of mutual responsibility, respect, trust, and fairness among all members of George Mason University and with the desire for greater academic and personal achievement, we, the members of George Mason University, have set forth the following code of honor. Any individual who is caught in the act of cheating or attempting to cheat, plagiarizing, or stealing will be brought forth before a council of their peers. In the event that the individual is found guilty, he or she will be punished accordingly.” Please refer to the university Catalog or Website at <http://gse.gmu.edu/resources/studentres/> for the full Honor Code.

Technology Use

GMU students must agree to abide by the university policy for Responsible Use of Computing. See <http://mail.gmu.edu> and click on Responsible Use of Computing at the bottom of the screen.

GMU E-mail

All students must have and use their GMU e-mail account accessible at <http://mail.gmu.edu>. This is the official e-mail address used by the Registrar, the Dean's office, and C&D faculty and instructors. Students are expected to check their GMU e-mail on a daily basis during the semester and to monitor their quota restrictions, especially if they have mail forwarded to personal accounts.

BlackBoard

BlackBoard will be used as the primary web link to access course instruction and documents, and to communicate with classmates. GMU's Blackboard address is: <http://courses.gmu.edu> Your “login” name is your GMU user id (the first part of your email address before the “@gmuedu.” Your user name is the same as your email password. All documents for EDCD 611, including all PowerPoint lectures, are posted on Blackboard. To download documents, put the cursor on the document and simply right-click and “save as” onto your hard drive.

Professional Dispositions

GMU students are expected to exhibit professional behavior. See: www.gse.gmu.edu for a listing of these dispositions.

Professional Performance Criteria (Effective February 25, 2003)

The Counseling and Development Program in the Graduate School of Education at George Mason University requires its students to adhere to specific Professional Performance Criteria. These Performance Criteria are on the Counseling & Development program's homepage: <http://gse.gmu.edu/programs/counseling/resources>

Plagiarism

The following two paragraphs are taken directly from GMU's website addressing plagiarism. Read them carefully to ensure thorough understanding of this issue. NOTE: Any form of plagiarism could be justification for dismissal from the Counseling & Development program.

The full GMU Plagiarism Policy can be found at <http://mason.gmu.edu/~montecin/plagiarism.htm#plagiarism>

Plagiarism Statement

Plagiarism means using the exact words, opinions, or factual information from another person without giving that person credit. Writers give credit through accepted documentation styles, such as parenthetical citation, footnotes, or endnotes; a simple listing of books and articles is not sufficient. Plagiarism is the equivalent of intellectual robbery and cannot be tolerated in an academic setting. Student writers are often confused as to what should be cited. Some think that only direct quotations need to be credited. While direct quotations do need citations, so do paraphrases and summaries of opinions or factual information formerly unknown to the writers or which the writers did not discover themselves. Exceptions for this include factual information which can be obtained from a variety of sources, the writers' own insights or findings from their own field research, and what has been termed common knowledge. What constitutes common knowledge can sometimes be precarious; what is common knowledge for one audience may not be so for another. In such situations, it is helpful, to keep the reader in mind and to think of citations as being "reader friendly." In other words, writers provide a citation for any piece of information that they think their readers might want to investigate further. Not only is this attitude considerate of readers, it will almost certainly ensure that writers will never be guilty of plagiarism.

Plagiarism and the Internet

Copyright rules also apply to users of the Internet who cite from Internet sources. Information and graphics accessed electronically must also be cited, giving credit to the sources. This material includes but is not limited to e-mail (don't cite or forward someone else's e-mail without permission), newsgroup material, information from Web sites, including graphics. Even if you give credit, you must get permission from the original source to put any graphic that you did not create on your web page. Shareware graphics are not free. Freeware clipart is available for you to freely use. If the material does not say "free," assume it is not. Putting someone else's Internet material on your web page is stealing intellectual property. Making links to a site is, at this time, okay, but getting permission is strongly advised, since many Web sites have their own requirements for linking to their material. (Virginia Montecino)

Attendance

Students are expected to attend class, arrive on time and stay for the entire class period. Missing two classes could result in failing the course.

Counseling Services

As a counseling program, Counseling & Development fully supports its students in their personal growth and encourages them to use the free counseling services at GMU. Counseling can help students cope with the stressful demands of a graduate program and can afford students the opportunity to experience both sides of the counseling relationship.
