COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is an advanced course in the interpretation and application of education research methods. Emphasizes comparison of alternative philosophies of research, ways of formulating questions/hypotheses, research plans, and analysis procedures. Students evaluate existing studies and investigate a range of research approaches.

Prerequisites: Admission to the Ph.D. program or permission of instructor.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon successful completion of the course, students should:

- be able to understand what research is, and how it differs from other intellectual and practical activities in education;
- be able to understand the major approaches to educational research, and the implications of the differences between these for doing and evaluating research in education;
- be able to find, understand, evaluate, and apply published research that is relevant to their field;
- be able to design the basic components of small-scale research studies, both quantitative and qualitative, including
 - identifying a research problem to study
 - formulating the purposes of the study
 - developing a conceptual framework for the study
 - generating appropriate research questions
 - planning relevant and feasible methods of sampling, data collection, and analysis
 - anticipating plausible validity threats, and thinking of ways to deal with these
 - dealing appropriately with ethical issues in the research

- be able to write clearly and coherently about the conceptual framework, questions, and methods used in a research study;
- be able to write clearly and coherently a professional literature review related to a proposed research plan;
- be able to use the writing style described in the Sixth Edition of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (APA) for writing term and research papers;
- be able to reflect on research results and how they might inform educational practice and policy;
- be able to present written research results clearly and coherently.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

*The following course requirements will be explained in detail during class meetings.

1. Mandatory Training for Persons Conducting Research Using Human Subjects

Students will be asked to complete Mandatory Training for Persons Conducting Research Using Human Subjects. Information is available online:

<http://research.gmu.edu/ORSP/HumanTraining.html>. The training takes between two and three hours and can be accessed from: <http://www.citiprogram.org>. A copy of your completion certificate must be submitted to the professor for credit to be awarded.

2. Completion of Human Subjects Proposals

Students will write a human subjects proposal to accompany a quantitative or a qualitative research method section. The materials are available on the web site:

<http://research.gmu.edu/ORSP/HumanFormsAndInstructions.html>.

3. Method Section

Students will write a more complete method section based on the HSRB proposal. The method section will contain information relevant to the specific type of research design (quantitative or qualitative).

1. Statement of purpose and research questions (1-2 pages)
2. Method (5-6 pages)
 - Research design
 - Participants and setting
 - Materials
 - Data sources
 - Procedures (proposed data collection process)
 - Proposed preliminary data analyses
3. References

4. Shifting Research Genre Presentation

Students will use their methods section, whether quantitative or qualitative, and propose ways of investigating the phenomenon using an alternative research genre. Thus, if a study uses quantitative methods, a proposal would be made for using qualitative methods; and vice-versa. In the presentations students will describe how research questions might change, a new methodology, including subjects, data gathering techniques, data sources, and data analyses. Students will also explore the question of how new insights might be gleaned from this alternative approach.

Students will make a short power point presentation to the class over the research genre shift. The slides will be submitted to the professor and handouts from the slides will be distributed in class. These presentations will occur during the final class sessions.

5. Article Discussion Leadership

Working with a partner, students will: (1) read, analyze, and interpret a research article for their peers; and (2) engage the class in critical dialog about the features and quality of the research, as well as the implications for practice and policy. Article discussants will make their article available to the professor and classmates at least one week in advance.

6. Chapter Self-Assessments

Students will be responsible for completing the multiple-choice self-assessments over the required chapters in Creswell. These will be taken online and a satisfactory score will be submitted to the professor using the emailing forwarding function at the end of each scored assessment.

Bring flash or other relevant media to class in order to save work completed during class.

All assignments will be submitted electronically. Redrafted assignments must include tracked changes.
