Prerequisites/Corequisites

Admission to PhD in Education program or permission of instructor.

University Catalog Course Description

Explores selected topics in education across all doctoral specializations. Offered by Graduate School of Education. May be repeated within the term for a maximum 6 credits.

Course Overview

This course examines the development of education policy at the federal level, with a focus on competing theories of the policy process, the political and policy dynamics of education reform, the role of institutions and interest groups, and the use of evidence in policymaking, to provide an in-depth understanding of how and why decisions are made, as well as their implementation and impact. Specifically, this course will:

- Provide historical context on the changing role of the federal government in education and the persistent and dynamic tension between federal and state authority.
- Review major federal laws and reforms, from early childhood through higher education, with a focus on current debates, critical issues, and key challenges.
- Identify the main policy actors in the federal education arena, both inside and outside of government, and examine their respective roles, authority, resources, strategies, and impact.
- Explore how different theories of the policy process can guide and facilitate the study of federal education developments and assess their comparative strengths and limitations.
- Compare the education policy positions of major political parties, track their evolution, and analyze how they have been shaped by evidence and ideology.

Course Delivery Method

This course will be delivered using a seminar format.

Learner Outcomes or Objectives

This course is designed to enable students to do the following:

1. Understand the historical development and changing federal role in education policy, including major federal education laws and reforms.
2. Examine critical issues and trends in federal education policy, as well as the various actors and perspectives involved in education debates and decision-making.
3. Explore policy process theories and apply them to the analysis of federal education events.
4. Study in depth a federal education policy issue by examining its progress through the various stages of the policy process.

Professional Standards

Not Applicable.

Required Texts

Weible, C. & Sabatier, P. (Eds.) (2017). Theories of the policy process. (4th ed.). New York: Routledge.

Additional required reading assignments are listed under the Class Schedule.

Course Performance Evaluation

Students are expected to submit all assignments on time in the manner outlined by the instructor. Format: Times New Roman size 12 font, 1” page margins and 1.5 line spacing.

- Assignments and/or Examinations

Assignment	Points	Assignment Due Date
Class Participation	10	N/A
Congressional Hearing	10	Feb. 6
Policy Presentation	15	Feb. 27
Policy Memo	25	March 27
Policy Paper	40	May 1

- Class Participation: Students are expected to attend and actively participate in class discussions. (10 points)
- Congressional Hearing: Watch and/or read the official transcript (available online through Mason Libraries) of a recent congressional hearing on any federal education issue and prepare a brief 2-page summary that describes the topic, the witnesses' testimony and perspectives, the lawmakers' statements, questions and discussion with their colleagues and the witnesses, and your commentary. (10 points)
- Policy Presentation: Prepare a short, 15-minute class presentation (including visuals, such as a PowerPoint or print handouts) on a major federal education policy development since 2000, such as a law, regulation or executive action. Discuss its history, significance, political context and policy impact, drawing on official records and media coverage, and answer any questions. (15 points)
- Policy Memo: Assume that you are preparing a policy memo for a federal policymaker (legislative or executive) on a federal education issue of your choice. The memo should include a) the purpose of the memo, b) issue background, context and recent developments, c) description of the policy problem and pending decision, d) discussion of options, including pros/cons and support/opposition, and e) your recommendation, along with a rationale. The memo should be 4-5 pages. (25 points)
- Policy Paper: Choose a federal education issue and analyze it through the lens of a policy process theory. The paper should a) discuss the federal policy issue and background, b) describe its progress through the stages of the policy process, and c) apply a policy process theory and assess its strengths and weaknesses in understanding the developments around this issue area. The purpose of this assignment is to demonstrate a student's understanding of both the chosen issue and the policy process theory. The paper should be at least 10 pages. (40 points)
